NEW FROM KEVRO

roon

Roon Labs appoints Kevro International as their official Distributor and Representative in Canada!

"We're excited to bring Roon and their best-in-class music servers and software solutions to the market," said Sheldon Ginn, VP of Sales & Marketing at Kevro. "Roon's innovative approach towards creating an interoperable solution for the industry is something that we see as long overdue."

Roon is an incredibly rich and engaging way to browse, organize, and listen to your music. With over 60 premium audio brands already using Roon's streaming technology in their products (along with Monitor Audio and Roksan, who will be developing new Roon Ready products beginning next year), Roon allows products from different brands to play and be grouped together through one intuitive interface. Roon also streams to Sonos, Chromecast, and AirPlay devices.

Roon is not limited to just the music you own; it integrates with TIDAL to provide over 40 million streaming songs, many of which are in high resolution. The advantage of Roon is having streaming music combined with files - like WAV, FLAC, AIFF, MQA, DSD, and other hi-res formats - and playing them to any device.

The best experience comes with the Nucleus or Nucleus+, Roon's music servers developed in conjunction with Intel. Nucleus and Nucleus+ allows you to integrate virtually any network streaming device with automation from Crestron and Control4, giving integrators the option to pick and choose the most appropriate audio devices for each zone of their house, regardless of brand or price. With Roon, a fully automated multi-zone system can include premium audio products from a wide variety of brands.

"Kevro has a knowledgeable and passionate team that have represented high quality audio and home theatre products for over 30 years. Roon represents a new approach to premium multi-room audio for the audio enthusiast, and we look forward to leveraging Kevro's expertise along with our Canadian Representatives to help educate dealers and integrators about the new options Roon creates for them and their customers," said Sheldon Ginn.
